

IF YOU CARE ABOUT AUSTRALIA, YOU SHOULD READ THIS!

START DE-ABORIGINALISATION – RECLAIM AUSTRALIA

To: Senator Pauline Hanson, Premiers of State Governments, local councils, media representatives, public and private agencies and stakeholders, and the relevant institutions overseas.

From: Kris Pickering, Australian journalist and author, and Vesna Tenodi, MA Archaeology, Dip. Fine Arts, J.P., artist and writer, with the following 72 conscientious objectors¹ to the current Australian Government policy of aboriginalisation of our country, with demand to start de-aboriginalisation of Australia:

Anthony Dillon, Marty Hoare, John Kolettas, Michael Melanson, Lawrence Hanley, Narelle Friar, Royston Wilding, John Singer, Alan Whitefield, Jan Holland, Patrick McCauley, Nikki Nunnari, Henry Rainger, Rod Morrison, Mariza Dujmovic, Kevin Thomas Bishop, Amy White, Tony Tee, Marcus Moyle, Briona Jo, Ed Swanzey, Marc Hendrickx, Mia Lenner, Mal Macdonald, Billy Mancini, Joanne Coulter, David Barton, Tony Connolly, Don Richardson, Amadeo Dujmovic, Tim Macartney, Mathew Flemming, Eugene Donnini, Billy Tectite, Ray Rowe, David Bentley, Jesse Bell, Tony Trousdell, Alana Mills, Ian Wells, Daryl Small, Elemer Szorkovszky, Grace Strong, Geoff Walker, Mark Hawkes, Kerry Hiscox, Henry Van Zanden, Kelly Edwards, Mick Arnup, Lily McVeigh, Brian Whitefield, John Wilson, Brian Chatman, John Allen, Derek Sheppard, Simon Levy, Rob Luck, Catherine Willett, Warren Dean, Robert Simpson, Micah Phillips, Peter Adit, Raul Raine, Cheryl Macaulay, Wayne Gattera, Michael Parker, Dan Robinson, Adam Smith, James Wang, Bruce Doughty, Robby Bruce, Christopher Nagle.

on behalf of many other Australians, including many genuine aborigines, and international people who are offended by the current Australian Government's policy to keep spending taxpayers' money on supporting the Aboriginal Industry² and conducting its aggressive aboriginalisation of Australia – without permission from non-indigenous Australians.

Please Note: This Open Letter 2023³ should be considered together with our earlier Requests and Open Letters, sent to the PM of the day and all the stakeholders⁴.

¹ The term 'conscientious objector' originally referred to those who refused to go to war, objecting on moral, ethical or religious grounds. These days it covers any objection based on conscience.

The issue of the right to conscience was dealt with by the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Article 18, which stipulates that "Everyone has the right to freedom of thought, conscience and religion" as well as Article 19, which reads: "Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers."

² "The Aboriginal industry" is used as an umbrella term encompassing Aboriginal organisations, Government Departments and agencies, members of Parliament and judiciary who support and enforce aboriginalisation, as well as mainstream taxpayer-funded organisations and individuals who are compliant with the Wokeists' agenda.

³ This Request is added to a compilation of all the Requests sent to the Federal Government since 2012, published as the "Downfall of Australia and the Rise of the Thugs".

⁴ Available at www.modrogorje.com

Dear all,

we address this Open Letter to the Prime Minister Anthony Albanese, Senators and members of Parliament, as well as to all Australian people who have the best interest of our country at their hearts.

Our last Request to the Australian Government urged our then PM and the cabinet to stop the ongoing aboriginalisation of our country and to start listening to non-aboriginal Australians' concerns.

This Open Letter is our demand to start de-aboriginalisation of Australia, in which the first step of every patriotic Australian would be to vote No to the divisive and racist "Voice".

The reasons to vote No to the "Voice" as a way to say No to other issues ignored by the Wokeists were succinctly listed by Alexandra Marshall in her recent post:

"Australians should have said what they really thought of the Indigenous activist industry a long time ago. The corruption, abuse, and misuse of race for power ends NOW.

This isn't just #No to the #Voice. It's no to all of it.

No to 'Welcome to Country'. No to the renaming of our nation. No to racist national park lockouts. No to 'affirmative action' which disadvantages hard working citizens. No to handouts. No to sit-down money. No to separatism. No to giving criminals soft sentences because of their race. No to the bigotry of low expectations. No to the vandalisation of history. No to the whole grift."

To that list we need to add:

No to the Fakers – self-declared aborigines, also known as the box-tickers, whose numbers have skyrocketed over the last decade or so. Out of 984,000 "aborigines", it is assessed that hundreds of thousands are self-identifying fakers.

No to fake research, where the conclusions are set in advance, and the papers commissioned and their authors funded to engineer a way to reach already formulated, pre-set conclusion⁵.

No to corruption as is endemic in political and judiciary circles and Royal Commission Inquiry into Aboriginal Land Councils, as requested by Senator Jacinta Price.

No to hiding archaeological evidence and interfering with genetic research – it is well known that any genetic research of the "sacred" fossilised human remains is forbidden in Australia, not because it is "sacred" but because it shows to which race/species those remains actually belong.

Aboriginalisation of our country is out of control, escalating to incredible proportions.

Rather than curbing this trend of complying with all the insane demands as are being made by the taxpayer-funded aboriginal industry apparatchiks and Woke "activists", our Government now wants to bring us more misery, more division, and more hostilities by proposing the so-called Voice.

This brazen disregard for wellbeing of non-aboriginal Australians has pushed most of us beyond the breaking point. While some politicians are aware of the frustration and increasing anger of the majority, some – including our current PM – remain oblivious to what the non-aboriginal Australians think and feel.

We note that there are a number of great people fighting this seemingly un-winnable fight against snowballing destruction of our democracy, disintegration of our society, division and animosity that has never been seen in Australia before.

⁵ Such as "Whitening the Sky: light pollution as a form of cultural genocide", by Doug Hamacher who received $700,000 in funding to write this "research":

https://www.academia.edu/41101900/Whitening_the_Sky_light_pollution_as_a_form_of_cultural_genocide

It is our right to now demand to be released from the shackles of Woke lunacy.

It would take too long to list all the facts and figures, such as that the aborigines were never the “first people” on our continent; that the whole First Nations concept and claim of 60,000 years of aboriginal presence were just made-up by dishonest academia, to provide ostensibly justifiable basis for making aborigines the most over-funded, over-privileged and pampered people in the world⁶.

So-called “decolonisation” was a bad idea – implemented by way of removing all the books that “offend” the tribes, allowing aboriginal violence and vandalism to go unabated, because they are “angry” and “provoked”. When reading now forbidden research results by our best prehistorians – such as John Mulvaney and Rhys Jones, and anthropologist Alan Thorne and researcher Grahame Walsh, as well as forbidden genome sequencing results by our geneticists Sheila van Holst Pellekaan and Greg Adcock (all of whom refused to alter their research results in order to please the aboriginal industry demands) we cannot think of any aboriginal achievements prior to 1788 that might justify for them being declared a special race, deserving of accolades over and above the rest of us.

Even the Max Planck Institute in Germany, and its Nobel Prize winning Director Svante Paabo – as well as with them associated universities and institutes in Europe and Asia – are being harassed for conducting research on ancient Australian aboriginal skeletal samples. By proving that Australian aborigines have the highest percentage – 6% – of Denisovan genes in their genome⁷, those scientists sent the aboriginal industry in overdrive, since their research results undermine the fake story about Australia’s prehistory.

What have the tribes contributed our society that would justify giving them special treatment over and above every other Australian? There is nothing their race has contributed to today’s society. It is still all about take-take-take without giving anything positive in return⁸.

Aboriginal “science” never existed. Aboriginal “art” is just a style taught to them in 1972 by white teacher Geoffrey Bardon, which the tribes appropriated just as they appropriate everything from our civilisation without ever either seeking permission or saying thank you.

The “Voice” is being spearheaded by the PM Anthony Albanese, already proven a liar, and by his favourite spokesperson and hard-core communist Thomas Mayo, who keeps glorifying his “communist comrades” and wants Australia shaped accordingly.

Even though the “Voice” won’t solve any problems, the attempt to change our Constitution is being pushed by a great number of corrupt politicians and judiciary. Rather than solving any problems, the “Voice” is set to bring more misery to hard-working Australian taxpayers.

Landowners, homeowners, business owners would all have to live in fear of someone screaming there is something “sacred” on their property, of being demanded to pay “rent” for their own houses, and threatened with violence should they refuse to comply.

⁶ Karen Pholi: “Why I burned my certificate of aboriginality”

<https://www.abc.net.au/news/2012-09-27/pholiaboriginality/4281772>

⁷ Danisovans are prehistoric people found in Siberia, contemporaneous with Neanderthals.

⁸ We note that there are a number of honest aboriginal people, some of whom recognised this whitewashing of history long ago – such as David Banggal Mowaljarlai who, prior to his death in 1997, bequeathed the most sacred objects in his possession to a white woman, saying that aboriginal spirituality evaporated long ago, and no-one in his own tribe could be trusted with those items. Or, more recently, Wakka Wakka elder Goomblar Wylo, who had his life destroyed by fake aborigines in the Blue Mountains, for telling the truth about aborigines today. Or Grahame King, who was among the first to fight for aboriginal rights back in the 1970s, only to be bitterly disappointed and publicly summed the situation up in 2010 by saying: “We have turned into toxic people, we poison everything we touch” – and was also attacked by the same Fakers and Woke public servants at the Blue Mountains City Council. Or Ian Willson, aka Bundeluk, aboriginal artist in the Blue Mountains, who publicly objected to the fake culture as invented by the aboriginal industry, and supported the non-aboriginal artists’ rights – only to die a mysterious death in 2014.

The ongoing aggressive “decolonisation” must be brought to the halt, and reversal of this absurd situation should start in order to de-aboriginalise our society as a whole and to reclaim Australia.

Everybody in this chain-reaction of Woke-on-steroids destructive mentality is equally to blame for destruction of everything that is held sacred by generations of Australians who actually built it.

And what would Voice achieve for aboriginal people that they haven’t already got? Land rights... they already have 62% of our country. How can it achieve anything when 4000 corporations and institutions have so far failed – despite being given countless billions over several decades. This is not about a Voice for the needy, it’s about a treaty and financial reparations for white “massacres”, “stolen” generation and other invented stories of whitewashed, rewritten history, as propagated by the aboriginal industry.

Voice, or the legislation planned to be introduced if it’s not approved by referendum vote, is just another step in aboriginalisation of our country. It would ensure the more of the same anti-Australian decisions, the kind of policies which have already caused us irreparable damage and immeasurable cost in every sense. It will have the tragic consequences that we’ll have to suffer for generations.

We hold every Parliament member personally responsible for this current ideological tyranny, which allows the aboriginal and Woke minority to constantly abuse, harass, and attack non-aboriginal Australians in all sorts of way, making us unsafe in our own country.

Instead of making it compulsory for aborigines to learn English, someone came up with the idea to force us to learn their “languages” – some of which have a grand total of 50 words. But that’s why there is aboriginal industry, which keeps inventing words for them, such as the “aboriginal” names of the cities. This farce – with people who never even had a concept of what a “town” or “city” means but are now dictating which aboriginal-sounding words should replace the names of our cities and landmarks – has to stop.

Since we see that aboriginal industry apparatchiks are now deciding how our country is being governed, what would happen if we were to fully embrace the “first peoples” sacred lifestyle?

Measure for measure – just as aborigines want with their Makarrata

If we have to watch aboriginal dot-kitsch everywhere we turn, listen to their gibberish at every official function, meekly look away when some drunken aborigine starts spitting insults in our faces, shrink in fear when they threaten us with violence and vandalism if we refuse to heed their “warning” about “payback” if something is declared as being “offensive” to any aboriginal thug and must be destroyed, removed, or hidden – why not adopt ALL of their “sacred lore”?

What if we decided to start doing the same, ordering aborigines to do something – such as go to school and get a job – and, should they refuse to do it, just vandalise their art galleries (built by our money), ignore their children living in abusive homes and never going to school (as they ignore them themselves), spear them in line with their sacred customs, and – should they complain – just say as they say: “We warned you, but you didn’t listen! You brought it on yourself!”

Most of us are sick of aboriginal industry and its malice, of having to listen about aborigines day after day, their deafening cacophony has become unbearable. And we are tired of appealing to our country’s weak leaders to end this lunacy.

We are no longer requesting, we are demanding the start of de-aboriginalisation of the country that we – Australians from 270 nationalities and ethnic groups – built, only to now see it disintegrating.

Australia was once known as a “lucky country”, turned into this sad and scary place, by those eager to pander to the Old Stone Age mentality and their claptrap about the “ancient culture” that never actually existed.

Rather than pushing the “Voice”, the Australian Government should:

- start de-aboriginalisation of our schools and universities, and brainwashing of our children into believing that Paleolithic (Old Stone Age) with its superstitious beliefs and primitive customs are somehow superior to our civilisation and its achievements – as propagated by staff complicit in perpetrating lies about our prehistory, history and present;
- start de-aboriginalisation of our public institutions such as the Australian Museum and other museums, art galleries, and public spaces, by returning the prehistoric archaeological exhibits, especially fossilised human remains – which are the most important items for archaeological research – and removing video-screens with endless droning about an invented “sacred culture” that never actually existed;
- start de-aboriginalisation of our libraries, returning the books which are fruits of our civilisation, but were removed to “make room” for “aboriginal authors”. This was nothing short of Fahrenheit 451 tactics;
- start de-aboriginalisation of our landmarks, mountains, highways and everything that we have built, returning their original names, and restore our rights to access our landscape places;
- start de-aboriginalisation of our big companies and small private businesses, all of which have to comply with aboriginal industry interference and waste years in endless negotiations with aboriginal “consultants” before every move they make. It is not surprising that big mining companies as well as private land owners often opt to just blast and bulldoze anything that might become an item or area of “potential significance” and a basis for yet another aboriginal claim. Applying aboriginal tactics.

The ill-conceived and anti-Australian policy of trying to appease the unappeasable is already backfiring big time. Keep giving more of our land away and throwing more of the taxpayers money to the screeching mob, and a lot of prehistoric items will just disappear never to be seen or “returned”.

With the Voice, the current Parliament would be leaving a great legacy as a corpse which – by bowing to the divisive and aggressive “activists” – in less than four years managed to turn Australia from a great nation to a society of savages trying to outdo each other in destroying each other’s culture.

- start de-aboriginalisation of the taxpayer-funded media and agencies which form part of the aboriginal industry, by de-funding the ABC, SBS, NITV, the Arts Law Centre of Australia, as well as any other body participating in aboriginalisation of our country;
- start culling the self-declared opportunistic box-tickers, who are never questioned or asked to prove their “aboriginality” in any way, and stripping them of fraudulently gained funding, awards, and positions, such as Bruce Pascoe scam.
- start the Royal Commission Inquiry into every organisation, politician, and individual who participated in introducing and conducting this ideological tyranny and, as needed, charge some of them with malice, some with fraud, and some with treason.

Yours in disunity,

Kris Pickering and Vesna Tenodi

on behalf of Concerned Australians

All replies and comments to be sent to:

Vesna Tenodi ves.ten2017@gmail.com

Endnote:

This Open Letter for De-aboriginalisation of Australia may be shared and forwarded to all who need to know, and considered together with our past Requests sent to the PM and all the stakeholders.

Recommended reading for people interested in the fabrication of Australian prehistory, history, and present, as well as how archaeology, anthropology, and genetics were destroyed by the aboriginal industry, this compilation of articles published in the American Pleistocene Coalition Journal: “Wokeism and its Reverse Racism – Aboriginal violence and corruption in the Aboriginal Industry”. Download it for free via this link:

<https://modrogorje.com/2022/10/vesna-tenodi-wokeism-and-its-reverse-racism/>

Recommended reading for people interested in prehistoric and contemporary art – “Sand in their Vaginas: Erotic art in prehistory and today” is available from Amazon:

<https://www.amazon.com.au/Vesna-Tenodi/e/B08QYML8DQ>